

Break In the Rain

By Ariel Luckey

© 2005

it was written
spoken and screamed
opened in dreams
a vision
provoking a stream of consciousness transition this intuition to listen we must make sacred decisions to listen
we must break hatreds divisions
to listen
to our elders weaving wisdom listen to the lyric of our love in freedom songs listen to the voices that will carry freedom on a new day, a new dawn, found on the horizon I love the sound of people down with the uprising harmonizing, vocalizing, organizing to keep surviving we have arrived in time to redesign the instrumental I say a prayer to stay aware of the potential freedom is essential within our discipline the listening is influential cause we can learn to live with alternative perspective connected by a light that burns to be reflected directed, to where our paths intersected collective, because all life is respected cause there's a break in the rain we made it thru the storming now our life is transforming our flesh blessed by the rays of sun our faces come together as this praise is sung there's a break in the rain

the clouds are clearing all fear and doubt disappearing so glad the sky is blue
been guided to channel love let your light shine thru can it be our family will be united guided to a place to overcome the ways we've been divided as we were born it was meant to be as my name was sent to me intent to be a new identity a lion of spirit now I'm trying to hear it sometimes I fear it becomes too much when I feel the true touch it's a double bladed sword I can't afford to not be clear I've got to steer my vessel toward the light that brought me here following the stars as a guide to the universe you can't assume the worst when creating something better every letter in the sentence brings the meaning together every seed in the land understands the plan we dig our hands in the earth manifest a birth to see what kind of harvest our future is yieldin as we start buildin

a world for our children
as we start buildin
a world for our children

cause there's a break in the rain
we made it thru the storming
now our life is transforming
our flesh blessed by the rays of sun
our faces come together as this praise is sung
there's a break in the rain
the clouds are clearing
all fear and doubt disappearing
so glad the sky is blue
been guided to channel love
let your light shine thru